

Picture Armadale: using the Library catalogue

From 2012 to 2017, the Birtwistle Local Studies Library's image collection Picture Armadale was a stand-alone website with no links to other useful local history items like oral histories and documents in the Library's catalogue.

That first version of Picture Armadale was deactivated in late May 2017.

Picture Armadale is now integrated with the standard Library catalogue, a feature which was not previously available. You can find historical images, oral histories and other local studies items all in the one place.

This is a short step-by-step guide to finding images on the Library catalogue.

- 1) Go to the Library catalogue's advanced search page at <https://tinyurl.com/ArmLibAdvSch>
(you may want to bookmark or favourite this page for future use)
- 2) Enter your search term(s) and select Picture Armadale in Collections.

NOTE:

- please remember that this method of searching the catalogue is a temporary measure that may be needed in the transition period
- the new Picture Armadale will, as before, search photographs only (no need for Advanced Search and choosing the PA collection manually)
- the new Picture Armadale will allow users to click on a subject heading and see linked items such as oral histories and printed documents

Thank you for your patronage, patience and interest in local history while the new Picture Armadale is being completed.

HAVE YOU READ OUR DISTRICT'S FASCINATING HISTORY YET?

Settlement to City chronicles the growth of the district of Armadale from its founding as a tiny military outpost at Kelmscott in 1830 to the thriving City that it is today.

The City, in commissioning this work, wanted to hear the story 'warts and all'. The result is an extremely readable and sometimes amusing history book. It is complemented with quotes from oral histories, lots of photographs from days gone by, and images of important documents.

Copies can be purchased from the City's Administration Building, your Libraries at Armadale, Kelmscott or Seville Grove, and the Armadale Visitor Centre.
